HOW: Premiering the end of June, 2010, BigTop JoJo and his Towering Show of Wonder began his tour of nightclubs, music venues, festivals, and unconventional public spaces with innovative evenings of both center-ring and sideshow entertainments interwoven with fantastical storytelling, puppetry, original music, and a revolving roster of celebrity performers and specialty acts from the worlds of circus, burlesque, theatre, and music.

BigTop JoJo and His Towering Show of Wonder offer audiences two formats in which to engage with the show and performers - Circus Salon and the Phenomenal Phantasmagoria. Circus Salon offer audiences a more casual experience to "peek behind the curtain," see acts in development, witness auditions for the Phenomenal Phantasmagoria, and socialize with the creators and performers in the Towering Show of Wonder. The Phenomenal Phantasmagoria is the Towering Show of Wonder's full-tilt evening of entertainment featuring BigTop JoJo's Family of Freaks as well as a revolving roster of celebrity and specialty acts. Dates and venues for the initial Phenomenal Phantasmagoria are to be announced shortly.

BigTop JoJo is the fictitious ringmaster of the Towering Show of Wonder. He is an entertainer of exaggerated proportions who embraces the freak in everyone and celebrates the freak within him. In his travels, he has met the magnificent and terrifying souls who are now permanent companions on his journey: the turtle boy, the mermaid, the woman made of lava rock, the emperor from a land where human and plant life comingle, and others. Their stories compose the spectacular phantasmagoria on which The Towering Show of Wonder revolves.

The mythology of the fictional BigTop JoJo and his Family of Freaks who travel the world with their caravan of curiosities is being developed by producer/creator Jonny Stax with theatrical director Cheryl Snodgrass, a core ensemble of performers and puppeteers, a diverse team of designers led by The Scooty & JoJo Show's Scott Bradley, and with contributions from selected writers and composers from around the country.
